NATIONAL GUARD UNITS
NOT COMING TO GRAYLING

An article published in a downstate daily, bearing a Grayling date line says:

"Although the Michigan National Guard will not hold its annual maneuvers at Lake Marging annual maneuvers at Lake Marging rethe, near here, this year, but instead will gather at Camp Custer, Battle Creek, the Grayling camp grounds will be the year of a concentration of National Guard units from surrounding states."

In discussing the matter with people who are in authority to know, we are told that there is no truth in the statement that National guard units from other states will come to Grayling camp this year.

Would you favor changing the term of office of the President to one 6-year term with no reclee ton? Should any president be eligible for a third term? Votest throughout the Nation answered these questions. Read their responses in America Speaks in next Sunday's Detroit News.

The United States Flag

(By Emil Giegling. Presented before the Kiwanis Club, Wednesday)

The United States flag in its present form is the outgrowth of various attempts to design a national banner. Naturally the early colonists used the flag of the Mother Country, which was the red ensign adopted in 1707 and used until 1801. This was a red flag with in 1707 and used until 1801. This was a red flag with a union consisting of the cross of St. George in red, and the cross of St. Andrews in white on a blue field. But the New England Colonies early adopted a banner of their own, in which the cross of St. George in red in a white field with a pine tree or globe in the upper left-hand corner of the capton replaced the union in the national ensign. This flag was carried by the colonial troops in the Battle of Burker Hill. With the beginning of the war for independence, many banners were designed, but none had any national significance. Chief among those were the pine tree flag of Massachusetts, a white flag with a pine tree in the center, and under it the motto "An Appeal to Heaven;" the snake flag of the Pennsylvania Gazette, a white flag in the center of which was a snake cut into nine sections, the head representing the New England Colonies, and each of the other sections one of the other colonies; the rattlesnake flag, a yelloward with a coiled rattlesnake in the center and undernead, he notio "Don't Tread on Me;" and Colonia Moultire's flag, a blue flag with a crescent in the upper left-hand corner and the word "Liberty" extending through the middle of the field. beginning of the war for independence, many banners

Original Stars and Stripes

The first flag adopted as the national ensign of the colonies in 1776 was designed by a committee consisting of Benjamin Frankin, Mr. Lynch and Mr. Hartison, all members of the Continental Congress. It consisted of thirteen stripes, alternating red and white; and the union of the royal ensign of 1707. The stripes represented the thirteen colonies and the union indicated that they still belonged to Great Britain. With the passage of the Declaration of Independence, the union with of the Declaration of Independence, the union with Great Britain was dissolved, and on June 14, 1777. Congress resolved "that the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, and that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

FORD V.8 ECONOMY MEANS HIGH TO

No MATTER how you classify your expenditures for car up-keep it's your total expenditure that counts. How much "dollar mileage" is your car giving you?

Dollars do go farther in the Ford V-8. Modern improved carburetion gives you unusual gasoline mileage with brilliant V-8 performance. Most owners of today's Ford change oil only every 2000 miles and add none between changes.

And after the first few thousand miles you begin to understand what Ford V-8 "dollar mileage" really means.

It gives you more miles per dollar because it gives you all-round economy low first cost, low up-keep cost, low depreciation and long life - as well as low gasoline and oil consumption. All these are big items if you aim to buy the most economical car.

I, of course, am intensely interested in affording security to our older people. As a matter of fact, this must be done, but it can only be made permanently successful if pensions, are based upon the needs of the individual, epitting and incidence attendant. upon the needs of the individual, shifting and incidence attendant upon the needs of the individual shifting and incidence attendant and in amounts which will provide for these needs without form of multiple taxation. As thrusting burdens of taxation a matter of common-sense fact, upon our poor people greater known to every man or woman upon our poor people greater than they can possibly bear.

The Michigan State law now whatsoever of economics, it provides a maximum old age pension of $30 per month per individual. The Federal contribution as provided by the Social Security Act is a maximum of $15 per month per individual. I have introduced an amendment to the latter providing an increase which would double the federal contribution. If and when this is adopted, a maximum of $60 per month per individual would be provided. economic soundness the plan is every pound of flower some two simply another of those myriad pounds of coal and fuel to bake put out under an attractive alput out under an attractive although somewhat deceptive label.

Such schemes owe their origin to the partially popular accepton ance of the widely propagandized "technocratic," semi-communistic and "social credit" doctrines which profess an "eccnomy of abundance," a "surplus economy," "land of plenty," etc. All such doctrines are, in reality, nothing more than mere assumptions resting entirely upon three there must also be compounded. tions resting entirely upon three Namely: first, that American definite expansion; and third, that human capacity to consume that human capacity to consume and almost another 300 million is as insatiable as our adept dollars in property maintenance, young copy-writers tell us. As a matter of fact none of these concopts are more than remotely capable of responsible statistical proof. Yet most of our "New Era" economic thought and almost the whole of the present that the cost of a loaf of bread "New Deal" seems to have been under the Townsend plan will be founded completely upon them. It is so easy to build solid houses than the 12½ cents as promised. of logic upon foundations of sand.

The inherent danger that lies submerged in such proposals has to do with the cumulative cost burden accruing to the entire community when a realistic at-tempt is made to actually carry tempt is made to actuary carry them into effect. Their deceptive nature lies chiefly in the over-simplified manner with which they are presented. A per cent tax sounds innocent enough at first hand. But a 2 per cent tax on all transactions is an entirely different thing once it works its way through the entire fabric of a nation's economic life. Through the sheer multiple effect of its cumulative action, as it is passed on as a cost factor from one transaction to another, it really becomes a 50 per cent tax upon in this connection something else of even greater significance has been discovered. That is that the compound effect of this form of tax immediately reacts upon supply and demand as these are which the full force of exorbit-ant consumption taxes are brought to bear upon prices and the cost of living. As prices mount, by virtue of the necessary inclusion of the accumulated transactions tax, the current running expenditures of the population that live on fixed incomes, such as salaried men and women, all wage earners, school teachers, ministers, widows, all those living on the accumulated savings of the past and even those on relief, will be compelled y promised that their plan would increase employment. And this in the very face of the fact that it can only serve to vastly increase unemployment. In order to minimize and allay apprehensions of this sort the Townsend speakers point out that the beneficiaries of these resulting taxes will be coming into the market with this vast "new" purchasing power, and that this will stimulate a return to prosperity and also become the natural solvent for our unemployment problem. What they fail to see is that by their plan they have merely shifted purchasing power from one group of people to another within the same economy, and as it is purchasing power already in existence it can create no new total national income.

Notwithstanding this fact the impression is permitted to remain that these billions promised in $200 per month payments represents new and additional income for the nation as a whole to enjoy.

To further disconcert commonsense apprehension Townsend plan speakers explain away the cumulative nature of their advocated tax by the typical illustration of its effect upon the cost of a loaf of bread. This is their standard illustration and they prefer to confine it to the bushel of wheat and show how the cum-ulated taxes can have but an infinitesimal influence on the ultimate cost of the bread. Even so they admit anywhere from per cent to a 20 per cent increase in price. But as wheat is only 1/24th of the contituent ingredi-

fundamental principle without ents entering into the production defeating the very purpose it was of a loaf of bread it appears that supposed to serve, and for which the remaining 23 other elements men live together in civil socie- have somehow been overlooked. Also, the American baking industry pays ible; second, that our land and plant capacity is capable of indefinite expansion; and third i advertising, administration, interest on working capital, and in other taxes. Against all of these payments must be charged the transaction tax. With all of these items considered it will be found far nearer 50 cents per single loaf than the 12^{4}_{2} cents as promised. In the above illustration the single item of bread alone has been employed. Now suppose we employ the same method of analysis to the more than 325,000 other individual commodities that are produced for human con-sumption annually, yet it is only when viewed in this realistic light that such proposals bodied in the Townsend plan can be correctly and properly appraised in their true fantastic order. And it has been because of such considerations that I am not now nor never have been an advocate of the Townsend plan. Notwithstanding my clear and unqualified position in the matter. I have seen, to my astonishment, statements made by me before your committee lifted out of their context and printed in the Townsend promotional literature in such a manner as to create the impression that I had actually endorsed their plan. As soon as this practice was called to my atention I promptly wrote Dr. Townsend organization nor did nisrepresentations. I am enclosing herewith a copy of efter. It not only acknowledged by anyone in the Townesnd organization nor did they cease their practice of using my name.

In closing I should like to say that business, big and little, can make money only when people have the purchasing power to buy the goods and services of business. The businessmen of the country are constantly seeking ways and means to bring about greater purchasing power in the country. If the Townsend plan were feasible and would do what its proponents claim it will do the businessmen would rise up in their might and demand that it be put in effect. Their opposition to the plan is based upon the certainty that economic the certainty that economic devastation will follow in the wake of its adoption.

Respectfully yours,
Robert R. Doane.

It has aided our national wellbeing in many ways. By spreading knowledge of new ideas and new products, by-telling the producer how his goods may be improved and the consumer where they may be obtarried, it has brought about that wide interchange of ideas and prod-ucts which is the basis of all prog-ress and prosperity ress and prosperity.

For the worker it has boosted the purchasing power of wages by lowering the cost of what he buys. For the seller it has increased profits, even at reduced prices, by greatly expanding his market.

Those are the wealth-creating powers of the Printing Press—when it engages in its normal functions.

But there are theorists who advouse of the Printing Press as & prosperity-builder in quite a different way.

They want to use it to create money, instead of wealth.

They seek to encourage the belief that if the presses at Washington simply print a lot more dollar bills, without additional reserves to sustain their value, everybody can get tain their value, everybody can ger rich. They ignore the teachings of experience — that reckless currency inflation boosts all prices, and there-by lowers the purchasing value in every pay envelope.

The two uses should not be confused. Behind the output of the pr which prints our newspapers, our books, our magazines and our advertisements is all the productive atrength of the country. History has proved this.

Behind the output of the press which prints recklessly inflated cur-rency is a misleading theory—which breeds bitter disappointment. History has proved that, too.

The universe is the only thing that cannot be reproduced accurately in a miniature model -on any scale, according to D. G. Falconer, Santa Barbara, Calir., in Collier's Weekly. ORGANIZE NEW COUNTY RE-LIEF COMMISSION

In order to make possible a administration of relief, the State Emergency Relief Commission, in June 20th. consultation with the Governor. has revised the membership the County Emergency Relief Commissions, effective July first, the Grange The County Commissions thereatter will be composed of the Chairman of the County Board of Supervisors, or a supervisor selected by him to serve in his place, the chairman of the present County Emergency Relief Commission, except where he is a county official, and a third member to be recommended by the County Board of Supervisors for appointment by the State Rehef Commission. The State Re-Peor, a break up, why, then a her Commission is hopeful that couple in Peoria have troken up, this revision of the membership. But it the same thing occurs in Hol of the County Relief Commission ywood, it invariably is featured as will secure greater public port, understanding and interest in the administration of relief.

There will be no changes in the State Commission nor in its personnel or basic policies. The supervision of the State Relief Administration over the local ad-ministration of public relief funds will continue as at the present time.

The Commission reiterated its, three-year-old policy that no employee of the state or county relief commission may hold an elective office or be a candidate for public office or in any other way take an active part in political activities of any sort. Commission will rigidly adhere to its policy that those who ad-minister relief abstain from political activity.

The Commission will set up at once a state-wide merit—system establishing—the—principles—of civil service for all employees of the state and County Relief Com-Townsend plan who'll condescend missions. Such a plan will oper-
